

Taylor Holley

Creative Director

Taylor Holley brings exceptional talent, creativity, and passion to the City of Light Christian Arts Center (CAC). As Creative Director, she draws from her enthusiasm and experiences in the world of art, music, and culture.

A natural teacher, Taylor leads students through leadership activities grounded in performing arts. She empowers CAC participants through exercises in meditation, journal writing, and drama workshops focused on storytelling.

Immersed in the Chicago-area theater arts community, Taylor demonstrates an exceptional example of CAC's core values and mission. A graduate of Columbia College and a current candidate for a Master of Arts in teaching, she provides participating adolescents and young adults with valuable, contemporaneous insight.

Taylor is an extraordinary resource for workshop and leadership program participants. She is extremely accessible and her diverse experiences serve as a testament to students that success can be theirs for the taking.

